NEWS BRIEFS

March Lion Takes Toll

Three persons were killed Monday as high winds and tornadoes—part of a nation-wide pattern of destructive weather—struck the lower Mississippi Valley. Snow, rain and sleet caused havoc from New England to Texas.

In the Ohio River Valley area, hundreds of families fled their homes as rain-gorged tributaries flooded homes and highways. Parts of Louisville, Ky., and Evansville, Ind., were under three feet of water.

The Weather Bureau said the turbulent storm system in the South was responsible for the heavy rains in the Ohio Valley alerted the Red Cross and called for emergency evacuation procedures. The Ohio River rose rapidly and the Weather Bureau said the impending floods could be the worst since 1948.

Nazi Tried To Starve Mistress

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A witness testified at Germany's biggest war crimes trial Monday that former Auschwitz Commandant Rudolf Hoess dallied with a woman starved to death when he lost interest.

"He ordered that a Czech woman who became pregnant during their affair be starved to death," Dr. Konrad Morgen told the trial of 22 former guards and Auschwitz concentration camp functionaries. "He didn't want his wife to know about his love affair, or his SS bosses for that matter, so he ordered his inmate mistress placed in a so-called stand up cell until she starved to death."

"But I managed to get her out of there and to a Roman Catholic hospital in Munich where she gave birth to a child. Later, I arranged for her complete release from the concentration camp system," he added.

Photographers Not Barred

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Charges against 41 college students arrested during a raid on a downtown hotel were continued Monday over objections of a platoon of high-priced defense lawyers.

The continuances, granted at the request of the city, came shortly after Judge John White denied a defense lawyer's demand that television and still cameramen be excluded and that film already exposed be confiscated.

Judge White told defense attorney John Carson there was no precedent for barring cameras from Municipal Court 3, which handles mostly routine and wife-beating cases.

'Mercy Killer' To Stand Trial

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina agreed Monday night to hand over Dr. Gerhard Bohne, wanted in connection with Nazi "mercy killings" of mental defectives during World War II, to West german authorities.

President Arturo Illia slashed through legal red tape and personally signed a decree ordering the extradition of the ailing Bohne 61, to West Germany, despite the fact no extradition treaty exists between the two countries.

30-Passenger Plane Hits House, Only Copilot Dies

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials marveled at the loss of only one life Monday when a passenger plane with 30 aboard crashed into a house in which six persons were asleep.

The chartered two-engine DC3 smashed down through murky overcast Sunday night in Hoffman Estates, a new district of bi-level houses three miles northwest of O'Hare Airport.

Copilot Daniel Jordan, 22, of Gary, Ind., was killed, impaled on a 2-by 4 timber of the house.

Virgil Pronovost, 40, of Robinson, Ill., the pilot, suffered head lacerations and chest injuries, and one of the 28 passengers, Fred Temby, 34, of Aurora, cuts and possible internal injury. Neither was critically hurt, a spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital said.

The plane, returning from a ski outing at Boyne Mountain, Mich., had been cleared for landing after Pronovost reported by radio he had lost 1,000 feet of altitude and was flying at 1,500 feet. The airport tower directed him to regain some altitude.

Pronovost, who was trapped in the plane cab with Jordan's body, told Fire Chief Carl Selke of Hoffman Estates, as firemen worked to free him: "There was too much turbulence. We tried to straighten it out."

The plane dropped under the low overcast only moments before a wing struck a telephone pole and it smashed into the one-story section of the house of Victor Golubski, 50, shattering that portion and ramming it off its foundations.

Golubski, his wife, their three children and an aunt, 76, were in the upper floor of the two-level section in bedrooms.

"A fire would have meant curtains for a lot of people," Selke said. But there was no fire although the plane carried more than 1,000 gallons of gasoline in its wing tanks and fumes were everywhere.

Selke said the seat belts-no smoking sign had been turned on in anticipation of a landing, and apparently the pilot had cut his master electrical switch an instant before the impact.

The Golubskis were trapped in the upper floor section of their house. They were taken out by firemen who pulled out a steel window frame.

Progress Seen By McNamara

HOA HAO, South Viet Nam (AP)—In a khaki uniform covered with dust, U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara went by helicopter around South Viet Nam's Mekong River delta Monday and said he saw progress being made.

But here in this village 100 miles west of Saigon, tragedy struck his mission. A U.S. Army helicopter flying security cover in the Communist-infested flatlands lost power and crashed into a field.

Two crewmen were killed; the pilot and copilot survived.

The crash marred what had seemed an otherwise successful trip for McNamara, who came here for the second time since December on a mission to learn what's going wrong in Viet Nam's war against a strengthened and aggressive force of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Bandits Hold Up Nun's Postoffice

MARYKNOLL, N.Y. (AP) — Policemen, staked out for about three months, shot the getaway car off the road and captured three wounded men who robbed a Catholic seminary post office of $50,000.

A fourth member of the New York City gang escaped on foot. He was believed to have been wounded also in the brief gunfight on thhe tranquil grounds of the Maryknoll order near Ossining, some 25 miles north of Manhattan.

A detective lieutenant was shot through the palm of the hand.

Maryknoll, in addition to being headquarters of the missionary order, is the national headquarters of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America. Catholics from across the country mail contributions here to the mission work.

The police vigil began before Christmas after an underworld tip to New York City police. Policemen watched the gang case the post office last week. A force of about 25 federal, state, county and city officers took stations early Monday morning to wait for the robbery.

A woman deputy sheriff in nun's habit, Mrs. Frances Anderson, replaced the sister who works at the post office. Deputy sheriff Francis Conklin posed as Brother Marius driving a paneled truck owned by the seminary.

Malice A Must For Libel Supreme Court Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—A public official must prove actual malice is involved before he can collect libel damages for defamatory falsehoods relating to his official conduct, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The interpretation of freedom of expression holds that actual malice can be established only if the one making a defamatory statement knows in advance that it is false or if it is made "with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not."

No Dissents

There were no dissents from the opinion written by Justice William O. Brennan Jr., but three justices wanted the court to go further in underscoring the right to freedom of expression.

Justices Arthur J. Goldberg, Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas expressed vigorously their belief that the Constitution gives citizens and the press "unconditional freedom to criticize official conduct."

The decision nullified a $500,000 libel judgment awarded to a Montgomery, Ala., city official—Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan—in a suit, against the New York Times and four Negro clergymen. The Times ran an advertisement March 29, 1960, criticizing handling of racial demonstrateions in the city. It contained information which, it was later found, included misstatements.

No Criticism By Name

Sullivan won the award in the Circuit Court of Montgomery County with the contention that several paragraphs in the advertisement would be taken as a reflection on him although the advertisement did not criticize anyone by name.

Brennan had this to say on that point: "Raising as it does the possibility that a good-faith critic of government will be penalized for his criticism, the proposition relied on by the Alabama courts strikes at the very center of the constitutionally protected area of free expression."

"We hold that such a proposition may not be constitutionally utilized to establish that an otherwise impersonal attack on governmental operations was a libel of an official responsible for those operations," Brennan said.

Insufficient Evidence

"Since it was relied on exclusively here, and there was no other evidence to connect the statements with respondent (Sullivan), the evidence was constitutionally insufficient to support a finding that the statements referred to respondent."

The supreme court sent the case back to the Alabama courts and left the way open for Sullivan to sue again in line with Monday's decision.

In New York, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of the Times, said Times officials had not yet seen the decision "but we are, of course, delighted."

"The most important issues in the case involve freedom of the press and naturally this is of fundamental importance for all newspapers and other news media," he said.

Stays Mum

In Montgomery, Sullivan had no immediate comment.

Brennan noted that Alabama's law apparently requires proof of actual malice for award of punitive damages, but "where general damages are concerned malice is presumed." Such a presumption, he said, "is inconsistent with the federal rule."

A contention that the Times was not protected by freedom of the press because the erroneous defamatory material was in an advertisement rather than in news columns was dismissed by Brennan.

Paid Ad

"That the Times was paid for publishing the advertisement is as immaterial in this connection as is the fact that newspapers and books are sold," Brennan said.

"Any other conclusion would discourage newspapers from carrying 'editorial advertisements' of this type, and so might shut off an important outlet for the promulgation of information and ideas by persons who do not themselves have access to publishing facilities—who wish to exercise their freedom of speech even though not members of the press."

While sending the case back to the lower courts for possible further action, Brennan said:

"The constitutional guarantees require, we think, a federal rule that prohibits a public official from recovering damages for a defamatory falsehood relating to his official conduct unless he proves that the statement was made with 'actual malice'—that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not."

Rocky Blasts Barry, Lodge; New Hampshire In Spotlight

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller blasted away at his absent rivals, Sen. arry Goldwater of Arizona and Henry Cabot Lodge, as the New Hampshire Republican presidential primary barrelled toward a possible photo finish in Tuesday's voting.

Campaigning personally in the closing hours, the New York governor flailed at Lodge, the U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam; and Goldwater, in obvious recognition that they represent equal threats to him in the nation's first polling place test of Republican sentiment.

Complex Ballot

If skies clear over the state as is forecast, about 100,000 Republicans and about 35,000 Democrats might turn out to mark a complex array of ballots in their primaries.

The first polling was scheduled seconds after midnight in Dixville Notch in northern New Hampshire.

Elsewhere in the state polls will be open at varying hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Lodge Polls

Rockefeller said that a big write-in vote for Lodge—which some pollsters are forecasting—probably would not be intended as such, but would be interpreted as an endorsement of the way things are going in South Viet Nam.

He added that if any Republican other than Lodge is nominated, "the Republican party will speak out on the facts" about the Johnson administration's handling of the Viet Nam situation.

Barry Extremes

Rockefeller told a news conference that Goldwater, once regarded as a heavy favorite to win in this New England state, had damaged his chances by taking "extreme positions."

He added that the Arizona senator "has found his positions not in the mainstream of Republican thought."

Marshaling his forces in Washington for a campaign into California, Goldwater remained confident that he will top a field of five avowed, and two unannounced candidates in the popularity contest. He predicted he will capture at least half of the state's 14 convention delegates to be selected.

Rockefeller made no claims, other than reiterating that he hopes to win by one more vote than his nearest rival.

Silent Lodge

In Saigon, Lodge remained silent about claims of local supporters that he is on the verge of becoming an active candidate, a move most thought would require his resignation as ambassador.

A write-in campaign for Richard M. Nixon seemed to be losing ground despite the efforts of former Gov. Wesley Powell in behalf of the 1960 GOP presidential nominee.

On the Republican ballot also were the names of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine; Harold E. Stassen, onetime governor of Minnesota, and Norman Lepage of Nashua, a political unknown.

Nixon, Lodge Spurt Ahead

DIXVILLE NOTCH, N. H. (AP)—The voters of this White Mountain village wrote in three votes for Richard Nixon and 3 for Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge in balloting just after midnight Tuesday.

Two of the remaining votes in the nine-voter village went to New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and the ninth vote went to Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Senate Unit Okays UC Bill Changes

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate Labor and Industry Committee approved five major revisions Monday to Gov. Scranton's unemployment compensation program and voted to start floor action Tuesday.

At the same time, organized labor, 1,500 strong, marched on the Capitol in protest to the UC proposals. A showdown vote is expected in the Senate Thursday or Friday.

The major changes include a new benefit table, elimination of restrictions against seasonal workers, modification of the "burden of proof" requirement and post pregnancy restrictions, and extension of benefits in times of recession.

Sen. D. Elmer Hawbaker, R-Franklin, chairman of the Labor and Industry Committee, said the changes "improve the bill substantially, and eliminate any semblance of discrimination in it."

To avoid delay, Senate Republicans must bring the issue up for a final vote before next Tuesday when Sen. Thomas A. Ehrgood, R-Lebanon, leaves for a two-week trip to Europe.

Without Ehrgood, Republicans are one vote shy of the needed majority to pass legislation in the Senate. Democrats have indicated solid opposition to the UC measure.

The major change proposes higher benefits to regularly employed workers by lowering minimum qualifying wages for claimants eligible for $25 and more per week while raising them for other workers.

The new standard would be based on 18 weeks of work or the equivalent instead of the present 16 to 23 week range, but total UC payments would be limited to 50 per cent of a claimant's total wages in his base year.

"We feel the changes will make the bill more realistic and put everybody on an equal level," said Sen. D. Elmer Hawbaker, R-Franklin, chairman of the Labor and Industry Committe.

Senator Scott Undecided On U.C. Vote

HARRISBURG — State Senator William Z. Scott of Lansford told The Daily Record last night he has not decided how he will vote on the amended but still highly controversial unemployment compensation bill.

"I was not in favor of the original bill, but these changes are all to my liking. They make it a better bill. Now I want to study the printed bill," Scott said.

Scott is one of four Republican senators whose votes are needed by the Scranton administration to pass the bill but who are reported "on the fence."

As Senate Republican caucus leader, he said he "insisted on" and won deletion of a "discriminatory" provision limiting jobless benefits for seasonal workers in the resort and food processing industries.

"My vote is not certain yet," Scott said, "and neither is passage of the bill. I have to feel first that I am doing the right thing for the majority of the people. Something has to be done. The fund is in dire shape."

He represents Monroe, Pike, Carbon and Wayne Counties.

1,500 Union Leaders Rap Jobless Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — Some 1,500 labor leaders gathered peacefully on the plaza of the Capitol Monday to proclaim their opposition to the Scranton Administration's unemployment compensation legislation.

An even bigger demonstration was indicated should it appear the Scranton program is making headway in the General Assembly.

The placard-carrying protestants heard Democratic legislative leaders brand the administration's proposal as a "political payoff" by Gov. Scranton to big industry. The marchers for the most part were business agents, presidents, secretaries and other officials of union locals from around the state.

Republican leaders, on the other hand, pleaded for "calm, dispassionate" debate on the issue.

The Democratic minority floor leaders, Sen. Charles R. Weiner, and Rep. Anthony J. Petrosky, both labeled the legislation a political maneuver on Scranton's part.

The demonstrators carried signs keyed to highway symbols. They read:

"DON'T YIELD to Scranton's Ripper Bill."

"Protect Unemployment Compensation Rights Stop Ripper Bill."

"Scranton's Ripper Bill ONE WAY Street to Relief Rolls."

Doctor Says Ruby Suffers Brain Defect

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Roy Schafer, the first of the defense's experts on the mind, testified Monday that Jack Ruby had organic brain damage.

"I'll ask if you have come to an opinion whether Jack Ruby has or has not organic brain damage?" the noted Yale psychologist was asked at Ruby's trial for the slaying Nov. 24 of Lee Harvey Oswald.

"I have," Dr. Schafer replied. "I have come to the conclusion that he did have organic brain damage and most likely the specific nature of it was psychomotor epilepsy."

Psychomtor epilepsy is roughly defined as being characterized by an explosive mental state which can be triggered by strong emotional feelings.

Dr. Schafer's testimory was in line with defense contentions that Ruby did not know what he was doing when, under the shock of President Kennedy's death, he killed the accused assassin.

Sen. Russell Rights Foe

Russell Leads Dixie To First Rights Win

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents won a first-round skirmish Monday when the Senate moved into the long-awaited battle over the administration's civil rights bill.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, urging senators to "seek the national good in its noblest terms," moved formal consideration of the House-passed bill.

Southern forces were prepared to begin a filibuster against the motions.

The southerners successfully employed delaying tactics to prevent introduction of the motion to consider the bill at a time when it would not have been debatable. They thus demonstrated anew their parliamentary skill and underscored the probability that the developing struggle will be prolonged and hard-fought.

The tactical victory went to forces led by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., when they managed to fill up the so-called "morning hour" from noon until 2 p.m. with a reading of the journal of Senate activities last Friday and amendments to the journal. Ordinarily reading of the journal for the preceding legislative day is dispensed with by unanimous consent.

Under Senate rules, Mansfield could have moved consideration of the measure during the morning hour and the motion would not have been debatable.

Santa Claus Real Good To Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) Testimony that Bobby Baker was showered with liquor, jewelry, cheeses and other Christmas gifts was coupled Monday with a charge that the former Senate aide had required one page boy to kick back part of his salary.

The alleged $50-a-month kickback, Senate investigators were told, went to Walter J. (Joe) Stewart, chief telephone page for the Senate Democratic majority. Stewart denied the charge and said the money was for payment of back rent.

Stewart had a desk in Baker's office and kept track of the Christmas presents, among other duties.

Boyd Richie, who worked as a Senate page in 1961-62, testified his $50 payments to Stewart had lasted only two months. He said they had ended abruptly when he followed his lawyer-father's advice and complained directly to Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president.

Johnson not only had the payments stopped, Richie said, but also "worked out an arrangement whereby I would live free at Mr. Stewart's home for the next two months" as compensation for the $100 already paid.

Richie, 18, athletic looking, comes from Wichita Falls, Tex. He testified at a Senate Rules Committee hearing into Baker's outside business activities.

Cyprus Truce Shaky After Bitter Battle

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A tenuous cease-fire silenced the guns in flaming Ktima Monday night after Greek Cypriots in daylong fighting claimed they had fought beleaguered Turkish Cypriots there to the point of surrender.

Despite U.N. truce efforts, other incidents flared throughout Cyprus, bringing the troubled eastern Mediterranean island to a new brinkof all-out fighting such as erupted at last Christmas time.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant appealed for an immediate end to fighting in Cyprus. Greek and Turkish foreign mindtheir influence to end "the senseless violence and bloodshed."

Newsmen at the scene in Ktima said they believed two Turks had been killed and 18 wounded and one Greek slain and 13 wounded in the fighting. The Greeks surrounded the Turks deep inside the Turkish quarter, and the Greeks claimed the Turks were ready to surrender.

A British army spokesman also said the Turks appeared ready to give up. But a Turkish spokesman said they would never surrender.

Before the fighting stopped inside the city of 6,000 Greeks and 3,000 Turks, Turkish leader Aziz Altay had been lifted out of the surrounded quarter into the Greek sector by a British helicopter for peace talks.

Malcolm X Breaks From Muslims

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm X, the New York Negro leader who once was considered the No. 2 man in the Black Muslim movement, has bolted the parent group to promote "active self defense against white supremacists."

The break-away from the Chicago-based racist movement headed by Elijah Mhuammad was disclosed Sunday night by Malcolm X.

Malcolm X declared in an interview Monday that he is not seeking to do battle with Elijah Muhammad:

"I am still a Muslim ... I intend to work on my own among America's 22 million non-Muslim Negroes to convert them.

Lower Draft Age Viewed As Poverty War Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key advisers have recommended to President Johnson that the draft registration age be lowered to give the war on poverty a head start in rehabilitating needy youths, a high source said Monday.

However, the White House is concerned lest this be interpreted as a move to speed up induction into military service.

An example of this sensitivity is the prompt denial drawn by a report the registration age would be lowered from 18 to 17. White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said: "This is totally false. It has not been considered."

At about the same time, a White House source said privately the precise age hasn't been decided—it might be 16, 17 or 17½—but that in any event no one would be inducted into the armed forces before reaching the present draft age of 18.

Actually, current draft calls are mainly in the age bracket of 22 to 23 years.

The President Already has ordered that, beginning July 1, all draft law registrants be examined when they reach 18 to determine whether they meet the physical, mental and educational standards of the armed forces.

Under the present program, begun last month by the President, those who fail these preinduction physicals on mental or educational grounds are referred to local offices of the Public Employment Service for counseling and testing. From there they go on to available jobs, training programs, or adult education.

The antipoverty recommendations would take this two steps farther:

By lowering the registration age, those who need help would be pinpointed from six months to two years sooner than under the regulations which go into effect July 1.

Those who fail to measure up on mental or educational grounds would be given a chance for a special hurry-up training program in special work schools.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, proposed last month that young men who fail the preinduction tests be drafted and placed under military discipline while undergoing rehabilitation and training.

However, it was understood that the proposal before the White House is for a voluntary program.

Details of the message on poverty apparently are still being threshed out. A White House source indicated that it probably would be several days, possibly next week, before the message goes to Congress.

Union Chief Asks Hands Off

DETROIT (AP) — The government was told Monday to stay out of union affairs by David J. McDonald, president of the 950,000 member United Steel Workers of America.

McDonald told the Economic Club of Detroit that, "there is an erroneous impression we, and other unions, favor government intervention into and subsequent control over our affairs. That is absolutely absurd.

"We recognize that government has the right to act at any time in what it deems the public interest. But we prefer in labor-management relations to work our our own problems, wherever possible, through the processes of free collective bargaining."

Telephone Co. Okays Dividend

DALLAS, Pa. (AP) — Directors of the Commonwealth Telephone Co. Monday authorized a common stock dividend of one share for every 10 held by shareholders of record April 16. This is subject to approval by the state Public Utilities Commission.

A company spokesman said the stock dividends, based upon multiples of 10, will be paid on April 29. He said only whole shares will be issued on this basis, and that any fraction of 10 shares will be paid in cash, based on the market value of common shares on the record date.

The company reported that its 1963 earnings per share were the second highest in history, exceeded only by 1962. Pending publication of its annual report, the company did not disclose actual figures.

Commonwealth Telephone Co. serves 88,000 customers, chiefly in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Seeks Post Of Auditor General

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Lancaster County man asked Commonwealth Court today for permission to amend his nominating petitions in order to be eligible to seek the Republican nomination for auditor general in the April primary.

The request was presented by George J. Brett of Columbia R. D. 1, a dental surgeon whose petition's were rejected by the state Elections Bureau on the grounds of incomplete information regarding addresses of the signators.

His motion was opposed by Stanley A. Miller of Harrisburg, who contested signatures contained on Brett petitions circulated in Allegheny and Butler counties.

G. Thomas Miller, a Harrisburg Democrat who served in interim term on the court before he was defeated last November in his bid for a full term, was Brett's counsel.

He argued before Judge Carl B. Shelley that all the voters on the petitions are qualified voters who should be allowed to amend the papers.

"Our position is that these are technical deficiencies which are amendable by an order of the court."

Police Brutality Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court was directed by the U. S. Supreme Court Monday to reconsider the case of E. Newbold Smith, one-time star athlete, who was convicted of assault after a fight with a policeman in Chester County, Pa.

Smith's appeal to the high tribunal said the case represented a "shocking incident of police brutality." Smith said he and Frank Elliott, police chief of Thornbury Township, Chester County, got into a fight after a "commonplace highway incident."

Smith, who attended the Naval Academy in 1945-48 and won varsity letters in football, wrestling and track, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $1,000. He was freed on bail pending the outcome of his appeal.

House Cuts $20.1 Million From Payment To Senacas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate interior subcommittee Monday slashed $11 milion from a House-approved measure to pay the Seneca Indians $20.1 million for land in Western Pennsylvania which will be flooded by backwater of the Kinzua Dam.

The cut means the full committee will be asked to consider paying 140 Indian families $9,126,550 for 9,500 acres of their land which will be flooded next fall.

The full committee is expected to vote next week with Senate action probably some time after the civil rights debate.

Church Explains Bill

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee, said "this bill represents in the judgment of the subcommittee treatment for the Senecas which is consistent with the most general treatment, which has heretofore been given Indian tribes in similar circumstances."

He said seven of eight subcommittee members expressed a voice vote in favor of the cut but absentee member Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, voted by proxy in favor of the House bill.

"Some of the members felt the bill went farther than was warranted in the facts of the case," Church said, "but they all went along."

The subcommittee is composed of western senators who generally see no reason to give eastern Indians more help than western Indians have received.

Although the breakdown in figures was considered only generally by the committee, the only major changes occurred in paying the Indians indirect damages and rehabilitation costs.

Use Head Count

The subcommittee went along with a recommendation by the U.S. Army Engineers to cut indirect damages from $1,033,275 to $824,273 and included $6,116,550 for general rehabilitation which was not spelled out in the House bill.

A subcommittee spokesman indicated he had followed the recommendation of the Federal Bureau of the Budget, which used a per capita amount of $2,250 for the enrolled members of the tribe to arrive at the amount of the rehabilitation payment.

The figure was similar to that used to reimburse the Crow Creek and Lower Brule Sioux Indians in the Missouri River basin for their blooded lands some years ago. In the case of the Senecas, it was based on an Indian-per-Indian head count of 4,132 members.

The bill also went along with the bureau's recommendations to simplify the Indians' tax problems.

Food Fair Strike Still Underway

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A walkout by some 5,000 grocery clerks at 174 Food Fair supermarkets in New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware continued Monday as a federal judge considered a company request to reinstate an injunction that had ordered a halt to all picketing.

The strike began Feb. 13 in New Jersey, and spread nearly a week later to Pennsylvania and Delaware in a dispute over the rate of wages a food fair discount subsidiary, J.M. Fields, pays clerks in four of its stores.

Food Fair contends the walkout is illegal, violating the no-strike clause in its agreement with the Retail Clerks International Association, AFL-CIO.

Food Fair has filed two multi-million-dollar damage suits against the union, charging extensive loss of business even though all of its stores remain open. Members of other unions, such as the butchers, have ignored the picket lines.

U. S. District Judge Harold K. Wood last Thursday dissolved an injunction banning picketing which was issued by Judge Thomas A. Riley of the Chester County (Pa) common pleas court. The clerks went into the federal court on the ground that Judge Riley had no jurisdiction outside his own county, which adjoins Philadelphia.

Food Fair contends that J. M. Fields has no connection with its grocery operation. The union argues that its contract with Food Fair provides that non-grocery clerks be paid not less than $1.50 an hour. Fields has been paying $1.25.

Wood reserved decisions on Food Fair's request to send the case bask to the Chester county court.

Harris Poll

Lodge Drive Catches Fire In NH

By Louis Harris

CONCORD, N. H. — The write-in campaign for ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has caught fire in this close New Hampshire primary. For the first time, although not a declared candidate, Lodge now has a chance to actually lead the field in the vote count Tuesday night on the basis of a secret ballot test.

Lodge's spectacular gains have come chiefly at the expense of Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

This has enabled Sen. Barry Goldwater to acquire a tenuous two point lead over Lodge and Rockefeller. Whether Goldwater will hold his lead will depend entirely upon how much he can keep the Rockefeller and Lodge votes divided.

The latest standings in the New Hampshire primary, based on a sample of 1,334 likely voters, each of whom filled out a secret sample ballot.

Secret Ballot Test
(Based on Percentages)

	Mar. 7	Mar. 2	Feb. 25
Goldwater	26	28	29
Rockefeller	21	30	29
Lodge (write-in)	24	15	16
Nixon (write-in)	20	16	15
Mrs. Smith	3	5	7
Stassen	2	4	3
Other (write-in)	1	2	1
Blank Ballots	(6)	(9)	(9)

Each voter in the sampling was handed a printed facsimile of the ballot and told to fill it out and drop it into a sealed ballot box. In this contest, most nearly simulating the actual voting on Tuesday, the burden was placed on the individual voter to write in the name of Lodge or Nixon.

Former vice president Nixon's write in campaign is moving up, though not as spectacularly as that for Lodge. However, it now seems certain that the leading declared candidates (Goldwater and Rockefeller) will be bunched with the undeclared candidates (Lodge and Nixon) in the final balloting.

Latest surveys show that if Lodge and Nixon were listed on the ballot, they might well finish ahead of Goldwater and Rockefeller do not run as well as they might because it is troublesome for voters to write their names on the ballot.

The real choices of these New Hampshire voters—if all candidates, declared and undeclared, were on the ballot—remain Lodge and Nixon in that order. The real preferences, as determined by a ballot with names of both declared and undeclared candidates is as follows:

First Choice Preference
(Based on Percentages)

	Mar. 7	Mar. 2
Lodge	27	27
Nixon	25	27
Goldwater	19	18
Rockefeller	17	15
Mrs. Smith	2	2
Romney	2	2

Scranton Sure State GOP Camp

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gov. Scranton has told Republican fund-raisers Pennsylvania will be in the GOP camp this November no matter who is the standard-bearer.

Scranton said his administration is working hard with the state and national Republican committees to build a united party that will put a Republican back in the White House.

"We are not doing this for some one person . . . but because we need unity to oppose the majority (Democratic) party," the governor told a luncheon meeting of the Pennsylvania Finance Committee.

"Whoever is nominated this July in San Francisco, we will go down the line for him, as we will for all our state and congressional candidates.

"We are going to lead the way in this nation for the Republican party."

Scranton, speaking extemporaneously after party leaders spent the morning deciding how to raise $4.5 million for this fall's campaigning, said the GOP has "a more united party in Pennsylvania than we ever had." He added:

"We are strong in the suburbs, but we are building up strength in the cities, too. We have fewer contests all over the state than we ever had when our party was out of power nationally."

And he said several times that the only reason he was working so hard on building a stronger political machine in the state "is to unite the party, nothing else."

Scranton frequently has been mentioned as a possible compromise choice for the Republican presidential nomination should the convention deadlock. But he has denied, over and over, that he is a candidate, saying that he would accept only "a sincere and honest draft."

Fire Rages In Meridian

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Eight business establishments, mostly furniture stores, were destroyed by fire here Sunday in the heart of the business district.

Most of the century-old structures on Front Street were two or three-story brick buildings.

No injuries were reported.

Unofficial estimates of the loss ran into the millions. Origin of the blaze was undetermined.

King's Death Due To Uremia

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Palace doctors said Sunday poisoning from a urinary blockage caused the death of King Paul of Greece last Friday.

A medical statement attached to the death certificate said a postmortem showed the 62-year-old monarch died of Uremia, a condition resulting from the retention of urine in the body.

The urinary blockage occurred last Tuesday, a complication after his Feb. 21 operation for stomach ulcers. On March 1 he developed a blood clot in the right leg and another in his left lung the following day.

The Lenten Story

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

PETER DENIES CHRIST

While Christ was being questioned in the house of the high priest, Peter stood below in the courtyard warming himself at a fire, for the day had dawned quite chilly.

A maidservant came and asked him, "Art thou also one of His disciples?" He denied it and said, "I am not. I do not know what thou art saying."

On his way out the gate, another maidservant thought she recognized him. "This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth," she cried out to the bystanders.

And again, as Matthew tells us, he denied with an oath, "I do not know the man!"

Special One Mill Hike Added

Monroe County Will Spend Estimated $1,899,708 In '64

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County will spend an estimated $1,899,708.79 in 1964 — $920,455 over last year's estimated budget of $979,253.79.

Most of the whopping increase —to be covered by a one-mill increase in taxes from eight to nine mills — comes from the start of two projects initiated by the previous board of commissioners.

One, the County Home project, will cost approximately $660,000. The other is a new Civil Defense center in the courthouse basement, slated to cost a total of $129,923. The county will receive half the cost of these projects from state and federal governments.

The County Home project will be paid off in five yearly installments of $70,00 each — totalling Monroe County's share of $350,000.

Taking away the County Home and Civil Defense projects, this year's budget is approximately $130,500 over last year's figure.

Much of this is attributed to salary increases, grants to charitable organizations, and improvements in the courthouse.

County Home Levy

The added mill tax is called the Monroe County Home Building Fund levy, and is placed on both real estate and occupational assessments.

Other noteworthy appropriations budgeted by the county include $15,000 for the Pocono Mountains Airport, $5,000 for the Sheltered Workshop, $2,500 for the Monroe County Planning Commision, $2,000 for the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, and $5,000 for the park commission.

The commissioners have issued a statement on the new budget, which will be available for inspection by the public at the commisisoners' office until March 30. It says:

"Monroe County Commissioners yesterday tentatively adopted and presented for public approval a budget retaining the existing tax millage at 8 mills and adding a special one mill Monroe County Home Building Fund levy.

"In considering the budget, the Commissioners pointed out that the present Board of Commissioners is charged with the responsibility of carrying out and paying for several large county projects for which contracts had been made by the previous board, particularly the project for the renovation of the basement of the courthouse, expected to be completed during 1964, and the project for the addition to the County Home at an over all cost of $650,000, of which the county's share is approximately $350,000 and on which the county is committed to pay $70,000 per year plus interest on the bank loan obtained for financing it.

"The Commissioners noted also that this keeps the county on the current basis of paying as it goes and over a period of five years will pay for the addition to the County Home without the necessity of floating any bonds.

"They also pointed out that in the curent budget are included substantial grants to various local charitable and civic organizations which includes such new ones as the $5,000 grant for the new Sheltered Workshop, $5,000 for the Monroe County Park Commission, $2,500 for the Monroe Planning Commission and other items.

"The tax millage is the same as that used in 1962 and for several years previous, and the commisioners said that there had been several substantial county improvements in the last few years as well as those now in progress."

Dr. Wimer Terms Book 'Dressed Up'

Editor's Note: Prof. Kurt Wimer, head of the Social Studies Department of East Stroudsburg State College is mentioned in a review of Gene Smith's new book, "When the Cheering Stopped — Woodrow Wilson's Last Years."

Dr. Wimer is cited as an authority for some of his observations on research papers he penned about Wilson. The Daily Record asked Dr. Wimer a series of questions on the review which was printed in Sunday's New York Times book section.

Ironically, Dr. Wimer is halfway through his book on "Woodrow Wilson And The Treaty Deadlock." It deals with the same period that journalist Smith dramatized.

Here are Dr. Wimer's answers:

Q. What was your reaction to seeing your name in the New York Times?

A. I am, of course, very much pleased and gratified that my articles have been noticed by scholars like Prof. Arthur S. Link of Princeton University, the leading authority in the field.

Q. What started your interest in Wilson?

A. My interest in Wilson is an outgrowth of my Ph. D. dissertation which I completed in 1957 at N.Y.U.

Q. Have you done further work since?

A. I have done most research on Wilson in recent years. My most concentrated study was done in 1960-61 when the Rockefeller Foundation financed a year's leave of absence from East Stroudsburg State College.

Q. Where did you do your research?

A. Wilson material is very voluminous and is deposited at various libraries. I spent months at the library of Congress in Washington. (My wife says it is rather an expensive extra-curricular activity.)

Other visits include University of Princeton, Harvard, Yale, etc.

Last Years

Q. Do you specialize on a particular period of Wilson's life?

A. My specialization is on the last years of the presidency of Woodrow Wilson. It roughly coincides with the period on which Gene Smith concentrated in his book just published: "When The Cheering Stopped".

Q. Did you like his book?

A. There can be no doubt that Smith is an excellent writer. He has extraordinary ability to portray human conflict and to dramatize. The Wilson story lends itself to such treatment. All reviewers agree on this.

Q. What is the major criticism of the book according to Dr. Link's Review in Sunday's New York Times?

A. On the whole Prof. Link fears that the book might give an erroneous impression of President Wilson and his policies. He goes so far as to call it an "historiographical disaster."

Interesting, Entertaining

Q. Do you agree?

A. I would say it is a dressed up version of the traditional treatment. To be sure it contains a good deal of new evidence and is very interesting and entertaining. But it tends to perpetuate misconceptions.

Q. Can you give an illustration? How do you feel about Smith's characterization of Mrs. Wilson? Was she the real president for 17 months as Smith suggests?

A. I hate to disappoint the ladies but my evidence does not bear this out. The influence of Mrs. Wilson has been overestimated and that of the President underestimated. If Mr. Smith, to quote Time magazine tried to establish "that Edith Wilson was much more powerful than anyone has suspected, and her husband much more incapacitated" I could not disagree more vehemently.

I am indeed glad that Prof. Link takes him to task for this fallacious interpretation of history.

I am glad that Link wrote the way he did in the New York Times about my writings, namely: "Kurt Wimer of East Stroudsburg (Pa.) State College has shown in a series of articles that Wilson, after his stroke, followed a consistent and well thought out policy aimed at forcing the Senate to approve the Versailles Treaty. That policy failed to be sure, but it was ingenious, elaborate and by no means irrational."

Anyone who examines the notes in Mrs. Wilson's handwriting during Wilson's illness will have to admit that the vocabulary used in the messages clearly indicates that Woodrow Wilson was the author.

Some New

Q. What do you think of Smith's treatment of President Wilson?

A. Smith has many detailed accounts — some of which are new to me. At times he describes how Wilson felt, e.g. when Wilson looked at faces of people staring at him.

Like Link I wonder, "how does he know?" Perhaps Smith takes journalistic liberties. Perhaps he goes further and embellishes on speculations of others who were guessing themselves.

Frankly he fails to recognize Wilson's central motivation and ignores consistently coherent patterns which were apparent throughout his illness and which were but a continuation of his previous effort. I guess if one begins by saying that the nature of his illness might produce irrational patterns one doesn't have to bother to look for rational ones. It may even be embarrassing to find them.

I am struck by the total absence of what will be the central theme of my book namely that Wilson's strategy and tactics after the onset of his illness were of one piece with those proceding his illness.

Q. Do you agree with Smith's account of Wilson's fight with the Senate?

A. Smith has no idea of Wilson's attitude toward reservations which is the key to Wilson's strategy. In fact he says time and again that Wilson wouldn't accept any reservations — an obvious misreading of Wilson's policies.

If we add to this that Smith has wholly wrong concepts of the opposition in the Senate one wonders whether he should not have studied this important issue more thoroughly.

In summary, I am reminded of Scott's Introduction to the Talisman, i.e. "The play-bill which is said to have announced the tragedy of Hamlet, the character of the Prince of Denmark being left out."

Not All Favorable

Q. How do you account for some glowing testimonials given this book?

A. Not all reviews are favorable. See, e.g. the March issue of Harpers. Even Time magazine comments that "his history sometimes reads like soap opera." Nevertheless, there is little disagreement that the book is very well written.

I have no doubt that most readers will not want to put it down once they begin to read it. It is a fascinating and moving account of the tragedy of Woodrow Wilson's life.

Further, I would not be surprised if people not intimately acquainted with Wilson's political philosophy and the subtleness of his approach would laud it glowingly. I too, enjoyed reading it. Still, I question whether the emerging picture of Wilson does justice to his genius.

Bungalow In Bangor Hit By Fire

BANGOR — A blaze at 11:30 a.m. Monday caused $1,500 to $1,700 damages to the three-room bungalow type home of Clyde Cruver, 88, of East Miller St., of Bangor.

The Bangor Fire Co., the Liberty Fire Co. and the Second Ward Fire Co. responded to the alarm. About 30 to 40 firemen were on hand and brought the fire under control in an hour.

No Injuries

Local officials believe the fire was caused by defective wiring. There were no injuries reported, according to Russell Brown, assistant fire chief.

Cruver was not home at the time of the fire. A neighbor, Raymond Buzzard reported the fire which reportedly started in the kitchen.

The alarm system which notified firemen of the fire, later caused concern and confusion when it failed to quit ringing an hour later. A malfunction in the system was reported.

Motorist Escapes Injury

EAST STROUDSBURG — Raymond W. Uhl, Jr., of Franklin Hill Road, East Stroudsburg, escaped injury at 3:45 p.m. yesterday when the accelerator of the vehicle he was driving reportedly stuck and his car struck a truck.

Uhl told East Stroudsburg Police he was unable to stop as he drove out of the driveway of the East Stroudsburg Jointure School on North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Lester Dimmick of Milford Road, owner of the truck, also escaped injury. Extensive damage was reported to the car and minor damage to the truck, according to East Stroudsburg Police.

Cars Collide Near Minisink

MINISINK HILLS—A two-car collision occurred yesterday at 5:15 p. m. on Rt. 209 when a truck swerved to avoid colliding with a car which was attempting a left hand turn.

Irvin Eckert, 41, of New Philadelphia, Pa., was traveling south near Ray Hartman and Sons Lawnmower Sale north of Cococabana when Edgar Sittig, 64, of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, also going south, stopped to make a left hand turn.

Eckert told Stroudsburg State Police he could not stop in time and swerved to the left to avoid a crash and struck the Sittig vehicle in the left side.

Police estimated the damage to both vehicles at $650. No injuries were reported.

Sheltered Workshop Has Home

EAST STROUDSBURG —The sheltered workshop has found a home.

Dr. James Reed, chairman of the board of directors of the workshop committee, said yesterday that the three-story Waring Building at the corner of Crystal and Washington Streets in East Stroudsburg has been rented by the workshop group.

The East Stroudsburg State College professor said the organization hopes to have the building remodeled and the workshop in operation by May 15.

A $50,000 building and organization campaign is being conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Monroe County commissioners announced yesterday that they have budgeted a $5,000 contribution for the new project.

Mikos Thanked

Dr. Reed thanked Walter J. Mikos, plant supervisor at Ronson Corp. and chairman of the sheltered workshop manufacturing and building committee, for his work in locating the Waring Building as a possible site and arranging the three-year lease.

Mikos said about 800 square feet in the basement and 1,600 square feet on the first floor would be used for workshop operations. Workshop offices will be located on the second floor with some further space available on the third floor.

The workshop will be called "The Burnley Workshop of the Poconos." Special work subcontracted from local businesses and industries will be performed by handicapped people. Keith C. Swalles, manager of Fred Waring real estate interests, said the building was being rented from Manwalamink Inc., the Waring real estate holding corporation.

He said Interior Design Associates owned by Mrs. Fred Waring would move to space on the third floor and that the Lindsey Fabric Shop run by Mary Jane Lindsey would move to another location. Both are now in the building.

"We appreciate the opportunity to use the building. It should be a real asset to the community," said Dr. Reed.

Bangor Board Holds Action On Building

BANGOR — A lengthy discussion on the use of the Steinmetz Building at the corner of Third and Broadway Sts. as an administrative building for the Bangor Area Joint School system was held last night during the regular meeting of the Bangor Area School Board.

The building was purchased some time ago by the Bangor School Board for $19,000 with a view of using the former home of Robert H. Steinmetz as the district administration building.

Dr. S. William Ricker, superintendent of the Bangor Area Joint School System, when asked to report on the usefulness of the building indicated he felt it could adequately meet the needs of the district for many years.

Dr. Ricker was working in his office when requested to attend the Bangor meeting by David Stoddard, Bangor Board president.

It was also noted that a survey on the school district and its needs is currently being conducted by Educational Research Inc., a professional education survey team.

Leaves Meeting

Dr. Ricker told members of the board that a report of the survey could be expected during the month of April.

While the discussion on the Steinmetz property was being held Dr. Nicholas Cascario, board member who had taken a stand against the use of the Steinmetz building as administrative offices, asked to be excused from the meeting.

He indicated that he did not wish to be embroiled in the question.

It was pointed out by other board members that when the building was purchased he also left the meeting early.

The Bangor board agreed, however, to await the report of the survey team before giving further consideration to the question.

A letter was received from the Northampton County School Board reporting that the State Council for Basic Education had approved the proposed county reorganization plan. This means that the seventh district of the Bangor Area Joint System can proceed with plans for reorganization as of July 1, 1964.

Presidential Season

The Presidential race officially opens today with the New Hampshire primary.

Republican candidates, declared and undeclared, have been campaigning and throwing barbs, challenges and criticisms at each other, but the season really opens today.

It is the first day on which the voters themselves are free to throw barbs and criticism in the voting booth.

But their decision in the free-for-all-but-Scranton and Rooney primary is expected to be unclear at best.

Six major Republican candidates will steal votes from each other, making it difficult for the politicians and pollsters to claim victory or defeat for anyone.

Since there are only about 140,000 probable voters, the whole heated battle may be a waste of time and money for all concerned.

The sudden surge of Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador in South Viet Nam, as a write-in candidate will certainly hurt both Senator Barry Goldwater and Governor Nelson Rockefeller. (See last minute Harris poll on Lodge support on Page 2.)

Former Vice President Richard Nixon will draw some write-in votes and Senator Margaret Chase Smith, although not considered a major threat to the male candidates, will get enough votes to hurt the others.

Three other factors detract from the meaning and significance of the New Hampshire primary today.

The Republican ballot is 15 by 18 inches in size and carries 100 names of delegates and alternate delegates to the Republican national convention. It further complicates a ballot on which major Republican candidates seek clear-cut victory.

On top of that, the smaller towns and villages are holding town meetings today, and many New Hampshire voters are more interested in local taxes and budgets than they are in picking a candidate for the Republican party.

And when all the votes are in, there may be a larger, total vote for the generally-ignored ballot question whether sweepstake tickets should be sold in each city and town than there is for the Republican Presidential candidates.

Truman's Spirit In Greece

When former President and Mrs. Harry Truman go to Athens this week for the state funeral of King Paul I who died Friday, they will find that Harry Truman's spirit lives in Greece today.

It is the only country which has erected a statute to the former President.

His spirit lives in the hearts of many Greeks who will never forget that President Truman in 1947 started U. S. military and economic aid to Greece which saved that country from Communist captivity.

It lives on also in the minds of Greek mothers who kept their children from starvation after World War II and during the post-war Communist guerilla fighting by feeding them American surplus food sent to them by Harry Truman.

Greeks still have the evidence of Harry Truman's gift in houses, patios and gardens on the mainland and in the Aegean islands . . . empty cans which once held butter and flour and beans, but now hold earth and flowers growing over the words "A Gift of the People of the United States."

Despite occasional outbursts against the United States for not following the Greek position on Cyprus or Turkey, most Greeks still love America because of the help we gave at a critical, hungry, war-torn period in their history.

Harry Truman started the post-war foreign aid program of the United States in Greece, and today it is one of the few countries where we are loved for our help in keeping a nation alive and defending its freedom.

The former President is a perfect representative for us at the King's funeral this week.

Comment Of The Day

"There are about 500,000 youngsters each year who fail this test. (The general intelligence test given when youths register for the draft at 18).

"You know if they fail this test, they are probably going to fail any test, and are probably not going to be able to hold down any decent job."

Atomic Weather

By George Dixon

CAIRO — This visit to Egypt was supposed to be a vacation and, like most Americans, we never feel we're really getting the most out of a holiday without mortifying the flesh. Consequently we rented a couple of camels at the foot of the hill leading up to the Great Pyramids, and went for a "joyride" in the desert.

We ran into two things absolutely impossible in the Sahara — rain, and bitter midday cold.

I searched the camel's dashboard for the gadget to turn on the windshield wiper. Falling in the hunt, I mumbled stupidly: "It's raining!"

"It can't be," reasoned my wife. "It never rains in the Sahara."

"Then why am I getting wet?"

Well, I had her there — but not for long. After mulling it over for a couple of dunes, she fell back upon the explanation that everybody, everywhere, seems to be using these days whenever they think there's anything unusual about the weather."

"It's due to the atom bomb," she said.

I told her this theory had been exploded more times than all the thermonuclear devices. A debate hot enough to take the chill out of the desert sands certainly would have ensued except that we ran into another thing that should be impossible in the Sahara — an anti-aircraft outfit.

It didn't open fire on us because it isn't considered sporting in these parts to pot a camel rider with anti-aircraft guns unless you get him on the rise. An Egyptian soldier with a walkie-talkie told us we'd better turn back because we'd gone too far.

"Tell him I never go too far," said Ymelda. "You would, if you were a gentleman."

"I think it's just as well I'm not," I said. "This guy doesn't strike me as being in the mood for light badinage."

If the soldier got this, he didn't betray it. He simply waved us back toward Giza. The rain stopped, but it stayed cold. As we humped and bumped back toward the Tomb of Cheops, Ymelda monologued:

"I read in the paper this morning that one-third of President Nasser's Army is tied down in Yemen by Royalist forces of the deposed Imam. It's estimated Nasser has 40,000 troops there. He must have plenty left over to have so many out here — what does he figure they're going to shoot in the desert, sandpipers?"

"Egypt is holding its elections for the National Assembly this Tuesday (March 10)," I said. "Maybe the anti-aircraft troops are being trained to guard the polling booths. You know how it is in these Arab elections — votes just seem to drop out of the skies —"

Ymelda said she had read that Nasser is preparing to change the monolithic face of his regime; that instead of running everything himself, he plans to transfer some of his powers to the National Assembly to be elected Tuesday. I shook my head at this, saying it was pretty risky fooling around with democracy.

"It isn't too foolhardy," said my wife. "I predict that Nasser's Government Party will win the elections."

"My, my," I exclaimed admiringly, "you are quite a sibyl! What divination led you to this prophecy — a wink from the Sphink?"

Ymelda said I could clown all I wanted but if Nasser's party didn't win handily she would eat a water buffalo on the hoof. When I objected that this was scarcely feasible she said she had read in Alan Moorehead's "The White Nile" that 19th century Egyptians used to cut steaks from a living buffalo, then sew him up, and he'd go lumbering off, apparently not missing his sirloins.

About Town

From Rotary Mag.

A young fellow just just out of school got a job as a teller in a bank. The first day on the job the cashier tossed him a package of bills. "Here," he said, "count these bills and see if there are 100."

The youth started counting. He got up to 58, stopped counting, and threw the package into a drawer. "No sense counting any further," he commented to the cashier. "If it's O.K. so far, it's probably right all the way."

The Pennsylvania Story

UC Bill Blasted

(ED NOTE: Two weeks ago Governor Scranton as "Pennsylvania Story" guest columnist expressed his feelings regarding the controversial unemployment compensation revision program advanced by his administration. In this two-part series, how Pennsylvania labor feels is expressed by Pennsylvania AFL-CIO President Harry Boyer.-MD)

By Harry Boyer, President Pennsylvania AFL-CIO

(Second of Two Parts)

HARRISBURG—Stripped of the confusing, intricate details and termionology of Governor Scranton's new UC law, what Senate Bill 3 really means is that many, many thousands of Pennsylvanians are to be cruelly punished for having committed the sin of losing their jobs.

Repeatedly, the Governor and his many spikesmen have refused to identify the number of unemployed workers who will be either totally ineligible or adversely affected by the purposed changes. They have emphasized only their contention that some will benefit and that the total package is necessary to promote industrial development.

The Pennsylvania AFL-CIO has published estimates on how many unemployed workers will get hurt — between 191,000 and 261,000.

Despite Administration cries of "ridiculous", an assistant Labor and Industry Secretary admitted publicly in Philadelphia that in three categories, 75,000 would be eliminated from eligibility. Curiously, for these same three categories our estimates are from 65,000 to 85,000.

Of special irritation to labor is the recurrent suggestion implicit in the Governor's approach to this problem: namely — that if recipients of UC benefits no longer will qualify, they will simply go to work.

A prominent Scranton cabinet member is quoted in the press as saying that the program "should not support the lazy." How remarkably similar to the discredited attitude of the "anti-relief" program of the city manager of Newburgh, N.Y. three years ago?

The half - million dollar ballyhoo on radio, TV and in full-page ads in newspapers baldly asserts that this program is vital to industrial recovery by making Pennsylvania more competetive with neighboring states insofar as UC tax rates are concerned. Instances have been cited of corporations by-passing Pennsylvania for locations in other states. Yet, the facts are that UC tax rates are higher in most of such states, particularly Maryland, Ohio, New York and Delaware.

No comment has been made by the Governor on last week's boast in the press by President Jack Busby of the Penna. Power & Light Co. in his annual report that 163 new plants had come into its eastern and central state area in 1963, creating over 10,000 jobs and producing payrolls of $47 million.

The highly - touted "equal sacrifice by both workers and employers" doesn't work out that way! Even an official Administration analysis admits this.

The loss of $55 millions in UC benefits will recur year after year — and even grow larger as the labor force expands. The employer "share" is reduced to a mere four million dollars after the fourth year.

While some few unemployed may receive increases in benefits, ranging from $1 to $5 above present maximum of $40 a week, other features of the Scranton program make possible a reduction in total benefits by eliminating the 30-week uniform duration period.

Moreover, any applicant can be summarily declared ineligible if he cannot, to the satisfaction of a Bureau interviewer, prove that he is "actively" engaged in a search for work.

The solution to the UC problem here can be found only in a most vigorous effort to create new jobs. This requires a closer and less - reluctant cooperation on the part of the State Administration with the Federal Government than has been the case to date.

Governor Scranton should join President Johnson in his war on poverty — instead of a war on the impoverished.

Dr. Koehler Says Thanks

Dr. LeRoy Koehler is not one to bow to politicians. He said so in more than a few words at the first annual meeting of the Ralder Alumni Association, a football-inclined organization that grouped under the slopes of Camelback Saturday night.

However, the president of East Stroudsburg State College nodded his head in indebtedness to Rep. Van D. Yetter for proposing him (Dr. Koehler) for the presidency of the College On The Hill.

Dr. Koehler said Yetter was persistent that he take over the reins of ESSC.

In fact the Monroe assemblyman made two trips to the Koehler residence at Bryant St., Stroudsburg, to get the long-time expert historian's approval.

You have seen the results. Under Dr. Koehler's administration, the college has grown tremendously. Naturally, Yetter is pleased with his choice and the icing was put on the cake when Dr. Koehler publicly thanked the veteran lawmaker for his "confidence" in proposing him to the job as head of a 1,800-student city within a city.

It was actually a good night to talk to politicians, whether they be office holders or just plain people interested in the Pocono Mountains.

Rep. Fred B. Rooney, the congressman who is battling Dr. George Creitz, the Easton minister for the Democratic nomination for the 15th District seat, isn't worried about debates.

Rep. Rooney feels he has the know-how to debate Dr. Creitz. The Bethlehem resident who "feels he has a job to do in Washington" will base his experience in statesman duties in Harrisburg and Washington against Dr. Creitz's first trip to the waterhole.

Rooney is fully aware of Dr. Creitz's ability to orate. He knows the Northampton County wearer of the cloth is rated tops in the field of public speaking.

No debates have been set up yet, although Dr. Creitz has issued a challenge.

Right now — Saturday night at Camelback — Cong. Rooney is not afraid of matching words and wits with his opponent in the primary election.

The Allen-Scott Report

Diplomat Ducks

WASHINGTON—The family of Yuri Nossenko, the important Russian secret police official who defected in Geneva last month, is putting U.S. authorities on the horns of a major foreign policy dilemma.

His attractive wife and mother are demanding a private interview with U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler, apparently to discuss the possibility of their conferring personally with Nossenko.

This unprecedented request, being carefully studied by Secretary of State Rusk, was made by the two women when they showed up unexpectedly at the U. S. embassy in Moscow following Nossenko's defection.

According to reliable State Department sources, Ambassador Kohler has diplomatically avoided a direct confrontation with the women, pending instructions from Secretary Rusk.

These are expected this week when Rusk meets with Ambassador Kohler, who returned to Washington last Thursday for a round of conferences on the impact the Nossenko defection may have on future U.S. Soviet relations.

The meeting with Kohler was needed, because Secretary Rusk and his key advisers are sharply split over the strategy to be followed should the women seek to come to the U.S. to talk with Nossenko.

In backstage deliberations, these State Department "experts" on Russia have been unable to agree on the purpose behind the women's strange request — other than it would never have been permitted without Kremlin approval.

Ambassador Kohler's vivid reports on the visit clearly indicated that the women, who arrived at the embassy attired in fur coats, had the blessing of the highest Soviet officials in their undertaking.

Inside Story — The Ambassador reported that the women sashayed into the U. S. embassy unannounced, asking that they be taken immediately to see him after giving their identity.

When an embassy aide told them this would be impossible because the Ambassador was too busy, the two women indignantly said they would wait until he was free to talk to them.

After a series of emergency staff conferences, Ambassador Kohler said he sent another aide to tell the women he would be tied up all day.

On that note, the women ended their "sit-in," announcing that they would return at a later date. As embassy officials watched, an official car waiting nearby picked up the two women as they departed.

U.S. intelligence authorities believe the women's appearance at the embassy was a desperate Russian effort to try to get Nossenko, the son of a late Soviet Minister of Shipbuilding, to return to the Soviet Union.

As reported in this column last week, Nossenko has revealed the names of more than 150 espionage agents in this country and abroad to U.S. authorities.

His sensational disclosures put the finger on at least five spy rings, one reputedly in a highly sensitive U.S. agency. Among those named by the former ranking KGB officer is an employe who had served in the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

While Nossenko was listed as a "disarmament 'expert" by the Soviet before his defection, he has revealed to U.S. officials that he held a key position in the "American section" of the KGB.

The KGB is responsible for the collection of intelligence abroad and counterintelligence within the Soviet Union; for guarding against internal subversion; and detecting major economic crimes, such as smuggling, currency speculation and embezzlement.

According to Nossenko, the KGB employs 400,000 and has undercover agents in every country in the world, including Communist China.

He reported that this network of agents is controlled by a series of main directorates for each of the organization's main functions. These are supplemented by specialized groups concerned with various tasks, such as communications, forging passports and gold coins, providing special weapons, guarding the Kremlin and training guerrillas. This worldwide network has more than 10,000 women agents.

Watching Cuba—Key refugee groups are now channeling their intelligence information on Cuba to the Federal Bureau of Investigation rather than the Central Intelligence Agency.

The voluntary, shift, which has come about in recent months, is reportedly due to refugees' disappointment over the way the CIA was handling their reports.

According to one official of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, which has been compiling reports on the continued Soviet build-up in Cuba, the CIA is again downgrading their information as it did before the Cuban missile crisis.

Dear Abby

She Wants Cake!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday was my 46th birthday. My husband gave me a new carpet for the living room and a sofa cover. My son gave me some charms for my bracelet. My husband offered to take me out for dinner, but I refused. I finally opened a few cans, called it dinner and went straight to bed. The big omission was a simple little birthday cake! I have never missed buying my husband and son one on their birthdays. Why are men so thoughtless?

SORE

DEAR SORE: Thoughtless? Gifts and an offer of dinner out? Perhaps had you gone out to dinner there would have been a birthday cake awaiting you. What is eating you, Madame? Your complaint takes the cake!

DEAR ABBY: What does one do about parents who do not instruct their children in the proper use of the telephone? I have one family in mind, but I know others, who let their children answer the telephone, "WHO IS THIS?"

This irks me terribly. They don't even give you a chance to identify yourself. Once I was almost tempted to say, "It's none of your business. Go get your mother!"

I GIVE UP

DEAR "I": Inadequate parents rarely appreciate criticism of their children's manners. Either risk trying to educate your friends, or learn to tolerate their children's rudeness.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from AGAINST BRACES and want to tell you that I was "against braces," too, until I started to wear them three years ago. I have made more friends because of my braces. When you meet somebody new and he wears braces, you can always start up a conversation with "Who is your orthodontist?" You can talk a long time about whose orthodontist is better, how long you have worn braces, and what kind of crooked teeth problem is being corrected. Some of the problems are fascinating! Some kids who have never worn braces ask dumb questions like, "Don't they get in the way when you kiss?" (They don't.) Just sign me—

"FOR BRACES"

CONFIDENTIAL TO I. F.: The most important thing a father can do for his children is to love their mother.

Get it off your chest. For a personal unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Unnecessary Cancer Fears

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Physicians in the practice of medicine are confronted with vast numbers of patients who come to their offices overwhelmed by a fear of cancer. These undermining fears often build up slowly over a period of years, disrupting the composure of the individual, even before the fears are expressed.

Contrary to the objectives of intensive educational campaigns, such fears may actually keep patients away from the doctor's office because they anticipate a fatal diagnosis. The anxiety of some patients can be so deep-rooted that they will not even accept a medical denial of their false fears.

Members of families that have had "a cancer experience" may be particularly concerned about inheriting a susceptibility to this disease.

Less Significance

Actually, genetics and heredity seem to play a less significant role than was formerly believed. An intensive study conducted recently in Denmark did not substantiate the unrealistic fears of cancer heredity.

The achievements of modern medicine have added many years to man's life expectancy. Statistically, men and women may now look forward to living an average of 75 fruitful years. Because of this extended life span, the occurrence of cancer in some part of the family is not unlikely.

Yet in the light of our modern diagnostic, medical and surgical accomplishments, it is unreasonable for any individual to allow the disruption of his equanimity and productivity by the unfounded fear of a disease he does not have.

RH PREGNANCIES

RH disease of the newborn has yielded its secrets to science. It is expected that within a year the severe anemia and jaundice of the newborn RH infant will be prevented by a newly-developed technique.

The letters RH represent an important factor during pregnancy. This symbol takes on particular significance in those relatively rare instances when the blood of the mother is RH negative and that of the father is RH positive.

Possible Occurrence

When such a combination exists in the blood of the parents, there is a possibility that the offspring will be born with severe anemia and jaundice. Strangely, this phenomenon seldom occurs in the first child.

There are always excellent scientific methods which virtually insure the survival and normal, healthy development of an RH baby. Yet hematologists (blood specialists) tirelessly have been seeking ways by which this condition could be completely avoided, and their efforts have achieved gratifying results.

When It Happens

Contrary to previous belief came the startling realization that RH sensitization occurs at the time of delivery, and not earlier in pregnancy. This valuable new information permits scientists to try to interrupt the RH cycle between the mother and her unborn child.

There is now undeniable evidence that the child can be protected from the hazard of erythroblastosis (anemia and jaundice) of the newborn RH baby.

This great scientific contribution to mankind is of sufficient reality as to offer security and relief from anxiety to families previously threatened by the RH symbol.

Stories Behind Words

To Badger

The badger, which is related to the skunk and the weasel, is a short, thickset animal.

Lt has powerful forepaws with sharp claws. Its skin is so loose that, when seized, the badger can turn upon its attacker.

For centuries there was a sport in England called badger-baiting. A captive badger was put in an overturned barrel, then several dogs were set upon it. Though the badger gave a good account of itself in the ensuing fight, it was always overpowered by sheer numbers.

Badger-baiting was outlawed more than 100 years ago, but from it came the expression "to badger," meaning to harass or persistently annoy someone.

Commissioners Set March 30 For Final Approval Of '64 Budget

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners yesterday set March 30 at the date for final approval of the 1964 county budget, and fixed April 2 and 3 as days for hearings on tax appeals.

Tax appeals will be heard by the commissioners on Thursday, April 2, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the commissioners' office; on Friday, April 3, appeals will be heard all day.

The board also decided to close the courthouse March 27 and 28, in observance of Good Friday and Holy Saturday.

The Theodore Burke covered bridge society sent the board a post card asking permission to erect signs for historical purposes at covered bridges within the county.

The board said it had no objections to the request, but that there are no public covered bridges left in the county.

Commissioner John M. Price suggested that the board look into the Kerr-Mills plan of medical care for the aged in order to supplement current payments by the county for this purpose.

The board decided to purchase eight nickel badges for the coroner's office.

CAS Gives Report

Charles Jones of the Children's Aid Society gave the board the status report of the society for February. He said that 26 applications were taken during the month, with eigh under study, one completed, five accepted, 10 pending, and two rejected.

The society aided 166 children from 150 families. Of these, 41 are in foster boarding homes, four are in private adoption study homes, two in adoption homes outside the county, seven are under institutional care, 83 in protective care in their own homes, and 19 are receiving counselling in their own homes.

Solicitor Russell Mervine asked the board for a filing cabinet and card index to be used by the commissioners office staff, including William Reaser, chief clerk, and himself. The request was granted.

C. A. Nauman, chief assessor, and the board then set up the dates for the tax appeals. Nauman also asked about a study done by solicitor Mervine on the tax status of the Stroud Mansion at 9th and Main Sts.

"That part of the Stroud Mansion not used by the Monroe County Historical Society should be assessed," Mervine said. He added that the owner of the building is Stroud Community House, Inc.

Marvin Abel of the Civil Defense office told the board that he would like to make arrangements to sell a 12.5 kw generator which will be removed from the courthouse basement during extensive CD renovations there.

At the recent meeting, it was learned that the directors contacted Dr. Maurice Goddard, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, concerning the number of forest fires in Monroe County.

Buying Home Big Step, Banker Tells Bangor Class

BANGOR — "One of the most important steps in your life is buying or building a home," Woodrow Horn, First National Bank of Bangor official said as he lead the discussion, "Buying or Building a Home on a Sound Financial Basis," at the Bangor High Senior Girls' Health Family Living class.

"Be sure the location is in keeping with the amount of money and type of a home you want to build," cautioned Horn, as he explained the resale of property will have its value determined by its location.

Horn was introduced by Patty Calviero and Ruthann Handelong, chairmen of the Home and Family Committee.

The Home and Family Committee announced the next discussion will be held on Wednesday, March 11, under the direction of Santo La Zuarto, Easton.

A meeting of the committee chairmen of the Family Program was held. Linda Bussenger was selected general chairman of the program committee for the tea to be held on March 18, in honor of the Family Living Program, participants of the Family Living Program, Bangor Area Joint Administrators, School Directors, the girls of the Class of 1955, and the Faculty of Bangor Area Joint High School.

Marilyn Butz was selected as chairman of the tea arrangements under the direction of Mrs. Jean Callie, Senior High Home Economics Instructress.

The following chairmen were named to introduce the speakers who were discussion leaders of their areas: Barbara Brinker, marriage committee; Ruthann Handelong, Home and Family; Amelia LeDonne, Child Care.

Mrs. Hazel Branch announced that an effort was being made to locate members of the girls' senior Health Class of 1955, and that it was rather difficult due to changes in names since graduation. It is hoped that as many of the girls will attend the tea as possible as these girls were responsible for the first printing of the Family Living Text Book.

Marilyn Butz announced invitations had been mailed to all community and area participants of the Family Living Program and acknowledgements were being received.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Maybe it didn't snow around here every other Thursday this winter, but it does seem in retrospect as if we'd had our full share. If so we've been extraordinary lucky about our Spring thaw. The streams are up but not very much.

Driving out to State College over the weekend, however, we found flooding and near flooding all the way. Maybe we were so dry last summer that we're still sopping it up, or maybe the thaw before last carried off a lot of it.

Also along the way, you can now catch tantalizing glimpses of whole stretches of Route 80, sort of like a worm that got caught in a disc harrow. However, when those segments finally all grow together, State College is going to seem so close that maybe the students will start bringing their laundry home to Mother.

Anyway it was a delightful weekend which is fun to experience but doesn't give much to write about. Which may explain why creative writers always seem such melancholy souls — it makes so much better copy.

Sure we're glad when our friends have a wonderful vacation with the sun always shining, the food superb, the service excellent, the people in the next unit absolutely compatible, but we don't really perk up and pay attention until they get to the part where they ran out of gas in the middle of nowhere and a bull got after them and the bottle broke and ran all over the suitcase.

Medical Legislation Theme Of Woman's Club Program

Stroudsburg—Defending the Pennsylvania Medical Society against the charge that they are "against" legislation, Robert Craig, executive secretary, pointed out that they were "for" much more legislation than they were against.

Of the 150 bills which came up this year in which the Medical Society was interested, they supported 120, he said.

One of the federal bills to which they are opposed, he pointed out, however, is the King-Anderson Bill which is now reaching a critical stage when it may be brought out of committee within the next few weeks, he warned.

One of the bills which has had the support of the state organization is the Kerr-Mills Bill which is answering the needs of Pennsylvania. The screening of legislation is one of the important services of the state medical society, he said, in the fields of welfare, licensing, workmen's compensation, public health, and hospitals.

Other fields include public information, scientific advances and medical service. He was introduced by Mrs. Thomas I. Metzgar.

Special musical feature of the program were piano solos by Jere Lantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lantz, East Stroudsburg, who was introduced by Mrs. Berton George.

Daily Record Sports Editor

If there was a theme to Saturday's third annual Red Raider alumni football clinic it would have to be a small word with a huge meaning. Pride.

"Pride is the icing on the cake, but it is the main ingredient," said Bruce Thomas, a former football player at East Stroudsburg State College. Now a line coach at Tarrytown (N. Y.) High School, Thomas was one of the Raiders discussing grid strategy in the Science Building at ESSC. His topic was "The Defensive Game."

These young men who comprise the Red Raiders are not only former grid athletes of ESSC, they are also former members of the student-coaching program inaugurated under Head Coach Jack Gregory when he came to the East Stroudsburg campus in 1959.

Echoing Thomas' philosophy was Dick Zimmer, another line coach at Westfield (N. J.) High School.

"We have developed a pride in our defensive unit," exclaimed Zimmer, noting that awards are given weekly to the boy who turned in the best overall defensive job. But there are no awards if the team loses. This happened only twice in Westfield's last 27 games (Record: 21-2-1).

Thomas also noted: "Pride means an awful lot to a ballplayer. . . . It must start from the first day of practice . . . and we have found that personal pride develops into a team pride. A successful athlete—and a successful team must necessarily be a proud athlete and a proud team.

This was a fine lesson being preached by these young men who are only beginning their professional careers. I got the distinct impression that perhaps these neophyte coaches themselves learned this same lesson from Gregory, a man to whom pride means a great deal. Jack is not a braggart but he is proud. And he has been quite successful at ESSC. His teams that I have seen are proud teams; they seem to reflect Gregory's ideals and philosophies of the sport.

Not loudmouths. Not braggarts. But prevailing inside them is this quiet type of pride. It is almost as if these athletes have derived the same characteristics from a coach as a son does from his father.

I am sure, too, that Gregory had a proud feeling Saturday afternoon watching these young men conduct this clinic. Sterling Brown, a member of the ESSC varsity coaching staff as a graduate student last year, was director of the clinic. Jack was sitting on the sidelines, so to speak, like a father sitting in the stands watching his boy on the field.

And, in a sense, these are truly Jack's boys.

Gregory also set the tone for the day by telling the group that "This is not a formal-type clinic. . . . The most important thing is to have you together for a complete day of football and socializing."

It was, indeed, all of that.

It was much more than serious discussions of various grid strategies which, to be sure, were quite illuminating.

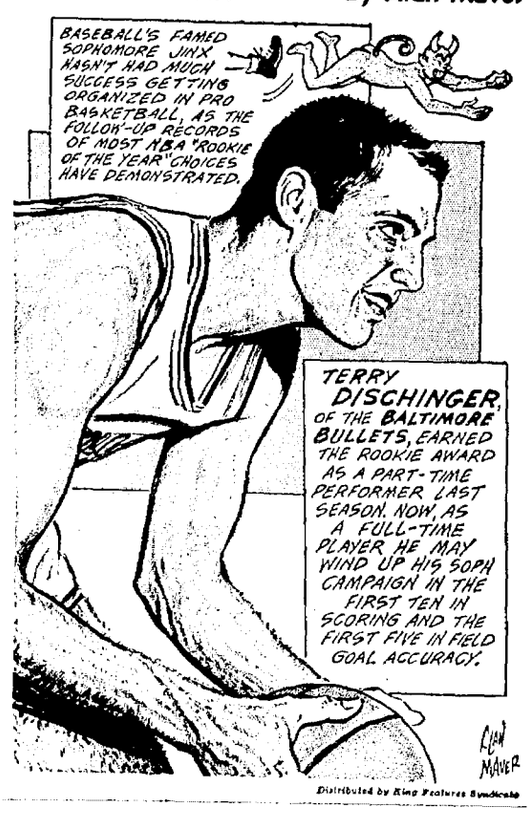
One of the brightest anecdotes of the day was offered by Wayne Hulsizer, head football coach at Pleasant Valley High School who attended the clinic along with Vince Shemanski of Pius X.

"Watch out for Pleasant Valley next year," exclaimed Hulsizer. "We just had five new families move into our district and they are all parents of five boys whose average weight is 200 pounds."

Then, after more than a few jaws were dropped in astonishment, he added: "Boy, what a wonderful dream that was!"

Yankees Hand Ultimatum To Holdout Jim Bouton

BEATS THAT 'JINX' - - By Alan Maver



FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The New York Yankees handed an ultimatum to holdout pitcher Jim Bouton Monday that he must agree to salary terms by midnight Wednesday or face a $100 fine for every day he is absent from camp.

Bouton, at his home in Ridgewood, N.J., was shaken by the news.

"I'll probably have to give in," he said, "but I'm going to check thoroughly first to see if I have any recourse. I think this is grossly unfair.

"I probably won't make a decision before the deadline."

The big right-hander, the first Yankee holdout since Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing fought contract battles with the late Ed Barrow before World War II, has been demanding a 100 per cent raise over his 1963 salary of $10,000.

His talking point is that he had a winning season, 21-7, and the best earned run average of all New York pitchers, 2.53.

"Can't Believe It"

"I just can't believe it," Bouton said dazedly when given the ultimatum. "It doesn't sound real.

"I was disappointed when the club refused to meet my salary demands, which I thought were quite reasonable. I am doubly disappointed now that the club has taken this attitude."

Ralph Houk, general manager of the Yankees, called Bouton by telephone Sunday night to lay down the law. He called a press conference Monday to relay the club's role in the negotiations.

100 Per Cent Raise

"Bouton wanted a 100 per cent raise," Houk said. "Originally we offered to give him a 60 per cent raise and later we made it 80 per cent This, we feel, is as far as we can go.

"I don't think the club can give him what he demands and still be fair in its dealings with other members of the team."

If the Yankees offered an 80 per cent raise, that would make the pitcher's pay $18,000. He wants $20,000.

"I think the last Yankee offer is barely reasonable," Bouton said. "But, even if I wanted to accept it, I feel differently now that I have been told of this $100 fine. I can't believe the Yankees would do this."

Fined DiMaggio

The last Yankee to be slapped with a fine for holding out was Joe DiMaggio in 1938.

DiMaggio made $8,500 in 1936, got a raise to $15,000 in 1937 and asked for a 100 per cent raise in 1938. Ed Barrow, the crochety old Yankee general manager, refused to go that high.

DiMaggio was docked two weeks' pay, amounting to $2,273 and finally signed for a reported $23,000.

Pitcher Red Ruffing, a DiMaggio contemporary held out in 1938 and again in 1946. Each time, however, he came to terms before he could be penalized.

Undefeated UCLA Emerges As Nation's Top College '5'

Unbeaten UCLA emerged Monday as the nation's No. 1 major-college basketball team in The Associated Press final poll of the 1963-64 season. The ruins are the first from the West Coast to finish on top since the powerful San Francisco Dons in 1956.

UCLA collected 34 first place votes and 392 points in the final voting by a special regional panel of 40 writers and broadcasters. Michigan wound up second with 341 points followed by Duke, Kentucky, Wichita, Oregon State, Villanova, Loyola of Chicago, DePaul and Davidson.

Duke, Michigan, Oregon State and Loyola drew the other first place votes. The Blue Devils were named the top team on three ballots while the others had one each.

The Cincinnati Bearcats, last year's No. 1 team, did not receive a single vote in this season's final balloting. They had a 17-9 won-lost record.

UCLA completed its regular season last week by defeating California and Southern California for a 26-0 mark. The Bruins became the first major college team to go through a regular campaign unbeaten since Ohio State in 1961.

There were only two changes in the next-to-last and the final standings. Kentucky, beaten by St. Louis in its final regular season start, dropped to fourth behind Duke. The Blue Devils disposed of North Carolina State, North Carolina and Wake Forest in winning the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

Duke wound up with 300 points and Kentucky with 258 on a basis of 10 points for a first place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

The other shift saw Loyola of Chicago trade places with another Windy City team, DePaul. Loyola advanced to eighth after beating Ohio University. DePaul, which lost to Bowling Green, fell to ninth.

The final Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses, season records through Saturday, March 7, and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis.

Brumel Criticizes American Drills

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery Brumel, the Soviet Union's world champion high jumper, says the United States may leave its Olympic edge on the hard boards of the winter indoor track meets.

"Personally, I would not think of engaging in such a heavy schedule at this time," the tall, 22-year-old Moscow physical education student added Monday. "I think the Americans are making a mistake in putting out so much in the winter meets. It is impossible for an athlete to reach his peak twice — now and in the fall."

Brumel said he and other Russian athletes were just beginning now to think about the Summer Games, opening Oct. 10 in Tokyo.

"We will train and work up gradually for the Olympics," he said.

Brumel, whose 7 feet, 5¾ inches in the highest any man ever reached in the high jump, is in New York to receive an award as athlete of the year, presented by the American Broadcasting Co. The presentation will be made Tuesday night.

Brumel, 22, a proud new father of a 3-months-old son, said he thought the Americans matched the Russians on a technical level but were not inclined to train as hard.

"Perhaps our discipline is greater," he said.

Brumel said he ties weights to his legs and back, sometimes totaling as much as 120 pounds, in making practice jumps.

"Our long distance runners will run miles an miles every day," he added. "All of our sportsmen spend hours getting into condition. They run and jump with weights attached to them. They do knee bends and push-ups while holding weights 500 pounds and over."

Floyd Says He'll Hand Title Over

HIGHLAND MILLS, N. Y. (UPI) — If ex-champion Floyd Patterson can win the heavyweight crown from Cassius Clay, he will immediately hand over the title to the next top contender, Floyd announced Monday night.

Here at his training camp, Patterson declared:

"I'll not only fight for nothing against Clay in my attempt to take the title from him and the Black Muslims, but I won't keep the championship. I'll immediately announce I won't defend it and I'll give it to the highest contender."

Wealthy Floyd made his "give-away" announcement after a session with a photographer, who took pictures of him cocking his fists at a large "X" taped onto his heavy leather punching bag.

The "X" was supposed to represent "Cassius X,' the Islamic religion Black Muslim name that Clay admits to having adopted.

In New York, promoter Al Bolan said he had heard nothing directly from Clay or Manager Bill Faversham in Louisville, Ky., except that Faversham said they were not interested in a Patterson fight, and that Clay said he would want a bigger guarantee.

Pin Openings

STROUDSBURG — Several openings remained available last night for singles and doubles in the Monroe County Women's Bowling Assn. Tournament at Colonial Lanes. Entries close March 15.

TOBYHANNA — Boys between the ages of 8 and 12 who are interested in playing in the Tobyhanna Little League this year are urged to contact Floyd Moss, manager.

'Fair Offers' To Rocky, Drabowski

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Kansas City Athletics have made "very fair offers" to holdouts Rocky Colavito and Moe Drabowsky, and owner Charles O. Finley said Monday he hopes they accept.

"I don't want to be quoted one way or the other on whether it's our final offer," he said, "but we made what we consider very fair offers.

"I hope both of them will agree to terms soon because they both are great assets to our club," he said.

Finley said Colavito was offered "a small reduction" from the reported $54,000 he received at Detroit last year, but not the maximum permissible cut of 25 per cent.

"We're not willing to offer him that much," Finley said.

Drabowsky, he said, was offered "a sizeable increase in salary, and he wants more of an increase."

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Second baseman George Smith hit a three-run homer Monday and led the Detroit Tigers to a 12-2 victory over their farm hands from Tigertown in a practice game at Henley Field.

Bill Regan, Detroit's big winner with 16 victories last season, pitched the first two innings, retired 6 straight batters.

Jerry Lumpe and Don Demeter played their first game in a Detroit uniform. Lumpe got a single and Demeter drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — Manager Harry Craft of the Houston Colts pulled a position switch, at least temporarily, Monday when he worked centerfielder Jimmy Wynn at third base in practice.

A converted third baseman, Wynn found the position not unfamiliar to him and went through the drill with a lot of finesse.

Craft indicated that the switch was not permanent. He wants as many men as possible to be able to play key positions on the club.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa., (AP)—Penn State gymnasts, led by team captain Mike Jacobson, dominated the final round of the 37th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships.

The Lions won three gold medals in six events Saturday night after winning two on Friday.

Jacobson, winner of the all-around crown on Friday, took first places in the high bar and parallel bars with two night scores of 19.25 and 19.000 respectively.

In winning on the high bar he dethroned defending champion Tim Phillips of Temple, who placed second with a score of 18.50.

Twin City Holds First-Place Grip

STROUDSBURG — Twin City held on to its half-game edge over R. C. Cramer last night as Mel Fager and Charlie Chronister paced their club to an easy 108-67 verdict over Chet's-Lanterman's in a YMCA Industrial Basketball League contest. Cramer romped winless J. A. Reinhardt, 115-46.

The victories provided Twin City with a 12-1 record and Cramer with an 11-1 mark.

Fager netted 27 points for Twin City while Chronister contributed 25. Also hitting double figures for the winners were Dick Lathrop (19), Ron Lauchnor (16) and Jim Barniak (14).

Buddy Cole set the scoring pace for Cramer with 25 points as Reinhardt suffered its 13th straight loss. George Brommer and Charlie Crane each swished in 20 while Hen Chomentowski tallied 17, Haas 16 and Neifert 10.

The triumphs by the pace-setters set the stage for what will probably be the championship battle Thursday night when the two meet for the third time for the top position. The two clubs split the first two games.

'God Bless You On The Freeway'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — As a dinner guest not long ago at the country home of Albie Pearson, we prepared to return to the city.

A pretty, dark - eyed Pearson named Karee, aged 7, waited for us at the door. She looked at us soulfully.

"Good night, Mr. Durslag," she said. "God bless you on the freeway."

Superbly, it captured the flavor or the times and it tended to show that there is nothing backward about the Pearsons, beginning with the master of the house, Albie, who is encamped here again with the Los Angeles Angels, a conquering hero of last year.

Pearson has a discouraging effect on others in spring training. To start with, he reports as a mountain of good health, a guy who has refrained during the winter from alchol, tobacco, late hours and other paths of sin.

Secondly, at 7 a.m., in the fashionable Riviera Hotel where the Angels are stabled, he explodes from bed and starts to stir, while others get up grudgingly at 8:30, yawning and scratching and trying to find a reason to crawl back in.

Albie, indeed, is a discouraging influence, especially considering that he hit .304 last year, fourth best in the American League, and got on base more than 300 times.

Not one to drag his feet, Pearson promptly (a) nicked the Angels this year for a salary of $33,000, and (b) opened a business called "The Albie Pearson Company, Builders and Developers."

"We buy property, develop and do construction," says Albie. "We operate in Riverside and San Bernardino counties, and the phone number is. . . ."

Dangerous Man

Pearson, you can see, is a dangerous man to whom to give the microphone.

At 139½ pounds, Albie says that he has reported to spring camp a pound and a half below his fighting weight. His height, however, hasn't changed, and he remains at 5 feet 5¾ inches, all the altitude he has had since the age of 18 when he ran away to join the baseball circus.

Since life to Albie has been reduced to a head-and - head struggle between him and bigber guys, he felt compelled last month to fly all the way to Miami to compete in the Major League Players Golf Tournament.

Pearson not only won the thing by eight strokes, but felt the sponsors with the cool reminder that Florida is still inferior to the California desert as a place for spring training.

Perhaps it isn't surprising that Albie should be the best golfer in the major leagues, considering that he sleeps on a golf course literally.

He occupies an extravagant home at the third tee of the Eurupa Country Club near Riverside. It comprises five bedrooms, four baths, stereo, swimming pool and other features that might occur to Mantle, Mays, or Kaline.

Slightly Plush

Sheepishly, Albie admist that his dwelling is slightly on the plush side, but adds that he hopes people won't misconstrue it as flash on the part of a little man.

"All my life," Pearson confided, "I've tried to avoid what is known as the little man's attitude. I've made a conscious effort not to swagger, put on the dog, or carry a chip on my shoulder."

The fast isn't always easy, because Albie admits that he has, by nature, a little man's attitude.

"My first instinct is to flare up and bust you," he says, "But I have learned to contain my emotions for two reasons. First, I want people to judge me as they would a big man. And second, a guy in my spot must watch his step. In a street fight, I can whip most fellows up to 165 or 170 pounds. But in baseball, where people are strong and well conditioned, players that size would knock my brains out."

It is a matter of record that Pearson, during his incumbency in Los Angeles, has engaged in only one feud of note. His antagonist, almost laughably, was Steve Bilko, who weighed 250 pounds.

"Super Mouse"

Steve would call Albie "Super Mouse," and Pearson would bare his teeth like a gopher and snarl back, whereupon Bilko discreetly would quit. He realized that this was an argument that could go nowhere, inasmuch as a man his size wasn't going to slug Albie, and vice versa.

Pearson recalled to us one day the only fight in which he has engaged in professional baseball. It was against a pitcher who had dusted him during a spring game in Havana.

"Was the guy bigger than you?" I asked.

Albie looked at me curiously. "Who isn't?" he answered.

The only one lately was Bill Veeck's midget, and he has gone to his reward.

Cy Barrett Says

Misleading Example

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

In "Specialty Salesman" magazine, it says, "The difference between investing in a franchise instead of simply being a sales representative with no investment roughly parallels the difference between buying a home and renting an apartment. There are advantages to both. . .and the eventual choice of careers must depend on the attitude and financial position of the individual himself." Logic dictates I should buy a franchise with my savings. Right?

S. LUCAS

DEAR LUCAS:

The magazine article expert does a moderately successful job of describing franchises, but the example is misleading. A property buyer has something tangible to resell, whether gravel, boards or dirt. There may be a loss, but something can usually be salvaged financially. The purchase of franchises often leaves proud owners blissfully staring at sky writing. The franchisee finds all he has is a right to make good under another name.

He may find the moniker unpopular among his fellow men and unsaleable. Without question, meritorious franchises exist and offer know-how to the inexperienced. But, too often, I have seen those, paying out money, unconsciously seeking hand-holding. A small independent businessman may profit from the multitudes, but deep inside can be lonesome.

Once, in Omaha, I was grounded by an airline strike, so I decided to put the time to good use by taking dance lessons. The pert instructress wouldn't believe I sought instruction, instead of companionship. That was the day I learned how accurate feminine logic can be at times. P.S. When buying a franchise. . . know what you are paying for.

CY

DEAR CY:

Please help an exmarine! While in the service, I took the college equivalency test given by the United States Armed Forces institute. By passing all four parts of the test, I received credit for a freshmen year at college. My problem is to find a school which will accept my credits gained through the test and will let me start in my sophomore year. How do I locate such a college?

EX-MARINE

DEAR EX-MARINE:

Fire a letter to the Armed Forces institute. Find out which colleges have been the most cooperative with ex - servicemen who took the college equivalency test. You can also write colleges and university admissions counselors directly or register with the College Admissions Center at 610 Church Street, Evanston, Illinois.

Through this clearing house operated under the auspices of the Association of College Admissions Counselors, your qualifications can be screened by over 250 colleges. Cost: $15. If you prefer to write schools yourself, fall in at your library. There you should find Lovejoy's "College Guide," "American Universities and Colleges," and "College Handbook." Check the library books last. You may never get through them to reach college.

CY

DEAR CY:

As a reader of your column, I was glad to hear some business folks have a feeling for retired people. I for one am going to take advantage of the 99 days' travel on cross-country buslines for $99, and am planning three trips. What has been bothering me is whether movie theatre owners have ever thought of the same idea. . . reduced fares for men and women over 65. Filling some of the seats during off hours would increase box office revenue. What about other service businesses giving "over-65ers" a break? How about letting the readers air their views instead of you answering this?

JENS

DEAR JENS:

My teeth are taped! What do you day to Mr. Jens, readers?

Slate Belt Residents' Kin Die In Italian Dam Break

PEN ARGYL — Last October when a tidal wave swept over the Valont Dam in Northeast Italy and virtually wiped out four towns, a brother and sister-in-law and niece of three Pen Argyl residents escaped death. A sister and niece were lost in the flood.

In a letter received recently by Mr. and Mrs. John Bontempo, of 443 E. Main St., Pen Argyl, Bontempo's brother, Frank, his wife and daughter, Lucia, of Via Pions, Longarone, Belluno, Italy, described the castastrophe as "still unbelievable — a nightmare."

The survivors are also relatives of Lugiand Angelo Bontempo of Jorytown. The Longarone family also sent pictures of the flood along with the letter.

In the flood which hurled a tidal wave across the dam upon sleeping villagers in the Piave River Valleys, a sister and niece of the Bontempo family, Mrs. Antonette Garmelli and her daughter, Chiara, were killed.

Mrs. Garmelli's two sons, Rev. Don Domenico Garmelli and George Garmelli, were saved. They were not in the immediate flood area.

About 3,000 of the village's 4,000 residents died in the flood.

The disaster was caused by a massive Alpine landslide which plunged into a deep, four-mile - long reservoir. The 873-foot-high concrete dam — the world's third highest — remained intact. Lonarone was the hardest hit of the towns in the flood area.

Mrs. Garmelli's body was recovered in the aftermath of the disaster but the body of her daughter has not been found, according to the letter. "We are still waiting and hoping to find the body," Frank Bontempo wrote. "We hope to rebuilt the town," he added.

Mr. and Mrs. August Pagotta of E. Main St., Pen Argyl, recently traveled to the Valont Dam by car visiting that section of Italy.

Lead for the bullets of the Revolutionary Armies was produced in Sinking Spring Valley, Blair County, Pennsylvania.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

FOR 5 YEARS
this economy car will stay an economy car!

We're not talking about the money you'll save using regular gas or having infrequent oil changes.

That's important, sure. But it's not what separates one economy car from another.

We're talking about replacement parts and labor for things like the engine block, internal engine parts, water pump, intake manifold, Trans-Axle case, rear wheel bearings.

Major repair bills.

Just one major repair bill is enough to turn any economy car into an expensive proposition. And your best protection against major repair bills caused by defects in material and workmanship is your warranty.

The Chrysler Corporation warranty* on vital engine and drive train parts covers replacement parts and labor for 5 full years

OR 50,000 MILES

Compare this with warranties of other cars: 6 months or 6,000 miles, 12 months or 12,000 miles, 24 months or 24,000 miles.

None better than Simca 1000. No other import can match it! That's the big reason Simca 1000 is the economy car that will stay an economy car. The big reason why Simca 1,000 is the economy car you will stay with.

Best protected, best performing all-new economy car. Make it yours . . .

* HERE'S HOW THE SIMCA 1000 5-YEAR/50,000-MILE WARRANTY PROTECTS YOU: Chrysler Motors Corporation warrants all of the following vital parts of the Simca 1000 for 5 years or 50,000 miles whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be replaced or repaired at an Authorized Simca Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, water pump, intake manifold, Trans-Axle parts and rear wheel bearings.

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J. — Pvt. Stanley Teleski, the son of Mrs. Marion Teleski of 101 Kraemer Ave., Stroudsburg, has enrolled in the U.S. Army Signal School at Fort Monmouth for intensive technical training. He is a 1962 graduate of Stroud Union High School and he attended Penn State University (Ogontz Campus).

Admission to the Signal School is limited to men of outstanding promise. Classed as a technical institute, the school gives training chiefly in the operation, maintenance, and repair of forty different types of electronic equipment, from radio and television sets to "electronic brains." Courses are given also in meteorology and both motion-picture and still photography.

A yearly average of 6,600 enlisted men are selected for admission. All are chosen from among the Army's best in point of intelligence, educational attainments, and practical ability. Roughly 90 percent are high school graduates, and 21 percent have completed one or more years at engineering school or college.

The Signal School courses vary in length. All are designed to qualify the enlisted student for higher rank and more responsible duties in the Army and, incidentally, to equip him for high-level technical work after leaving the Army.

ALBERT J. HARTMAN JR., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Hartman of Snydersville, will leave soon for six months training with the Army at Fort Jackson, S. C. He is a graduate of Stroud Union High School, Class of 1963.
